Dear Tenants:

You've most likely already heard the news. All four downtown banks were robbed Wednesday night. The crooks cleaned them out of $2 million (both in cash and safety deposit box valuables).

Stratford Police completed a thorough investigation, yesterday. To their shock, they discovered a hidden trap door in the floor of all four bank vaults. Underneath each trap door lay tunnels which connected to a central tunnel underneath Lake Victoria. This central tunnel, much to our shock, led directly to the maintenance room in this very building.

When questioned about the tunnel, our superintendent protested: "A mouse must have done it!" A judge issued a warrant and a forensic team searched Ewen Ross' apartment. After they found a dirty T-shirt with the words "Beer Police" in his laundry basket, they realized he couldn't possibly have been responsible.

Despite being pardoned of all suspicion, Ewen felt resignation would be the best course of action. With some money he's saved from his superintendent position, he's bought a small island off the coast of Mexico where he'll be relocating.

Jonah Manley (apt. 10) will replace Mr. Ross as superintendent. Yes, we know, Jonah is only nine-years old. Well, David Faraday was only 12 when he captained a ship in the War of 1812. Granted, the Americans did lose that war...

So, without Ewen, who will do the repair work? Well, we've decided to move away from allocating funds towards such left-brain obsessions as running water and a working furnace. Instead, we're using the money to hire Valerie (apt. 18), at the rate of $300 per hour, to curate fine art paintings to ornament the currently bare hallways.

Now, on the subject of people leaving... Mark and Sarah (apt. #11) have been evicted for violating the no-pet rule. No, we're not talking about that cute little kitty they adopted. Purring Lilly was just a decoy. We discovered they were keeping a six-foot Burmese python in their bathtub. When animal control tried to capture the exotic reptile, it slipped down the drain. It's currently somewhere in the building's plumbing system.

On the subject of pets... Marion Hall (apt. #9) turned in her license, after a car accident she had on this very day, one year ago. Fed up with the taxi company, she has sponsored a refugee camel from Syria. It will be residing in one of the garage's parking spots. Unfortunately, camels emit a very unpleasant odour.

We trust everyone will enjoy the new changes. Please keep any complaints to yourselves. And remember to wish Ewen Ross well before he takes off tomorrow for la Isla Mujeres in his newly purchased private jet.

Sincerely,

Jason & Diana

P.S. Because of the feral python in the plumbing system, we advise that you keep your toilet seats down when not in use. Just before opening the lid, flush the toilet. Then take care of business quickly, flushing every 20 seconds.

P.P.S. If you do meet the python, do not look it in the eye. Do not smile. And, please, do not scream. How are we ever going to catch the critter if people keep on screaming? It's not like pythons are poisonous. They kill their prey in a much quicker and humane fashion.
